Bequest Column

PREVIOUSLY HONORED:

Robert Otis Jones

Loula (Evans) Jones

Mary B. Merritt

The column in this issue is dedicated to the memory of Edward Trippe Comer, born 1856, died 1927, and to Georgia Collier Comer, his wife, born 1861, died 1948.

Edward Trippe Comer

Georgia Collier Comer

The Comer Bequest

On December 4, 1919, Mr. Edward Trippe Comer gave to Wesleyan College fifty $1,000 Liberty Bonds to be known as the Catherine L. Comer Loan Fund. This bequest gave the Trustees of Wesleyan College full authority to manage this fund. The trustees were authorized, if the fund should at any time reach the sum of $100,000, to set aside $50,000 for the endowment of a chair or department, provided the chair or department be named in memory of his mother, Catherine L. Comer. Two such chairs have been established, the Catherine L. Comer Chair of Fine Arts on the Rivoli Campus and the Catherine L. Comer Chair of Painting and Drawing at the Conservatory of Music and School of Fine Arts. The total value of the assets in this fund now approximates $150,000.

Under the will of Mr. Comer, probated on April 6, 1927, there are additional bequests to Wesleyan. Mrs. Georgia Collier Comer under this will was given a life tenancy. Mrs. Comer having died on April 13, 1948, these bequests will probably be turned over to Wesleyan at an early date. Mr. Comer set aside one-third of his estate for the benefit of certain educational and eleemosynary institutions. Out of this one-third the following bequests were made to Wesleyan.

"To the Art Department of Wesleyan College of Macon, Georgia, eight per cent (8%) thereof with the direction that this bequest be known as the 'Collier Art Bequest' in honor of the father of my wife who was himself an artist." A codicil to the will dated September 25, 1925, added three per cent of this one-third to this bequest.

"To the Wesleyan College of Macon, Georgia, four per cent (4%) in addition to the provision already made by me in memory of my mother; this to be added to the Catherine L. Comer Loan Fund and to be subject to the provisions of the trust deed covering the fifty thousand dollars ($50,000.00) in United States bonds."

It has been estimated that the "Collier Art Bequest" will amount to approximately $77,000. This amount added to the permanent endowment of the Art Department of the college will, of course, greatly strengthen the position of Wesleyan in this field.

In 1941 Mrs. Georgia Collier Comer became interested in erecting a building on the Rivoli Campus to be known as the Collier Fine Arts Building. On account of the recent World War it was impossible to erect this building, but Mrs. Comer's interest continued in it until her death on April 13, 1948. She created a board of trust and turned over to these trustees certain securities. These securities were valued at the time of Mrs. Comer's death at $120,000. The estimate on the proposed building on the present building market is approximately $200,000. The trustees of Mrs. Comer's trust are now endeavoring to raise a sufficient sum of money to erect this building, which will be a replica of Monticello and will be located on the quadrangle facing the library. This building is desperately needed and when erected will serve a most useful purpose in the field of the fine arts on the Rivoli Campus.

It is impossible, of course, for anyone to realize just how much good has been accomplished by this family of devoted friends and benefactors of this institution. We do know that several hundred girls have been aided by the Catherine L. Comer Loan Fund and that its possession has given stability to the whole institution. These additional bequests will multiply the benefactions of these good friends. We cherish their memory and thank God for their gifts.

THE WESLEYAN ALUMNAE

THE ONE HUNDRED AND NINTH COMMENCEMENT

The one hundred and ninth Commencement at Wesleyan was held May 29 through 31, 107 seniors receiving degrees.

Class-Club Dinner

On Friday evening the officers of Wesleyan clubs and members of reunion classes were entertained for dinner on the Rivoli campus at 6:00 p.m. It was a happy, informal occasion, with special tables for the alumnae guests in the main dining room. Afterward the group met in the Student Lounge for reports of Wesleyan clubs, which will be found elsewhere in the magazine.

Alumnae Day

Alumnae Day activities began with the annual meeting of the Alumnae Association in the chapel at 11:00 a.m., Annie (Gantt) Anderson presiding. The stage was beautifully decorated with palms, hydrangeas and oleanders by Octavia (Burden) Stewart and Clare (Johnson) Walker. The main building and the dining room were decorated with magnolias and a variety of smaller garden flowers by Ruth (Holt) Sheehan and her efficient committee of alumnae.

As the alumnae entered the chapel Em-telle (Mason) Clisby's committee of alumnae ushers gave them programs bearing the traditional picture of the facade of the chapel with these words from Christopher Morley under it: "To be deeply rooted in a place that has meaning is probably the greatest gift." Inside the program carried the names of the 107 graduates and their alumnae candle-lighters who took part in the Induction of the Class of 1948 into the Alumnae Association.

Following the invocation by Nettie Peacock, the seniors marched in, each one followed by an alumna with a lighted candle. A brief responsive reading by the Alumnae President and the audience gave the story of the founding and purpose of the Association, and the seniors pledged themselves to the support of their Alma Mater. The 'Benson Charge' first spoken by Catherine (Brewer) Benson to the class of 1888, was given by Annie (Gantt) Anderson.

Kwe Yui Kiang

The Alumnae Day Speaker

Two of the seniors, Annie Anderson and Rosaline Gilmore, went up to the stage to kneel before their alumnae mothers for the lighting of their candles. Five other daughters of alumnae and one son of an alumna were listed on the program with their mothers as candle lighters. Gwendolyn Flanagan had her grandmother, Rosa Belle (Ward) Daniel, to light her candle. Sister, aunts, and alumnae teachers or friends made up the group of candle-lighters.

Lucia Domingos and Rosaline Gilmore represented the fourth generation of their families to attend Wesleyan, Lucia being also the third generation on her father's side. Angus Domingos, Jr., represented the third generation of his family on both sides. Rosaline is the only daughter of Rosaline (Jenkins) Gilmore, former national president and now Alumnae Trustee of Wesleyan, and is the granddaughter of former president Charles R. Jenkins. Annie Anderson is the third and youngest daughter of Annie (Gantt) Anderson, national president of the Alumnae Association.

Fifteen of the graduates have held Alumnae Scholarships during their college years.

Following the Induction Ceremony, Mattie (Adams) Buchanan and her sister, Mary Belle (Adams) Davis had charge of a memorial service, placing a bowl of white lilies on the stage and reading the names of alumnae who have died since last commencement.

Evelyn McGarrity of the senior class, holder of the Marion (Luse) Chenery and Laura (Fraseur) Knight Alumnae scholarships, sang Malott's "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Evelyn Smith, also of the senior class.

Carolyn (Cater) Jones, chairman of the committee on nominations, announced the following candidates who were elected: Alice (Burden) Domingos, to succeed Dorothy (Blount) Lamar whose term as Alumnae Trustee expires; Jennie (Loyall) Anderson as member of the Board of Managers; and the following members of a Fund Committee: Virginia (Townsend) Munford, Jr., '32, Margaret (Bennett) Jones, '24, Fannie (Smart) Merritt, '32, Alberta Trulock, '38, Rachel (Johnson) Ross, '31, Katherine (Alfriend) McNair, '37, Russell Brinson, '32.

Estelle (Stevens) Mason presented Alice (Burden) Domingos, and a resolution by Dorothy (Blount) Lamar honoring her was read.

Belle (Ross) Valentine announced the gift of the Macon Club for scholarships to the college. Martha (Aiken) Pendergrast made the presentation of the Atlanta Club's gift to the speech department in the absence of the president, Nonie (Acree) Quillian. Mary McCowen, president of the senior class, announced the class gift of a pulpit Bible for the new chapel. The gifts were accepted for the college by President Silas Johnson, who announced a gift of $1,000 from Rich's of Atlanta for the radio department.

Lila Mae Chapman, chairman of the Bequest Committee, announced two bequests from alumnae during the past year, that of Mary (Bass) Merritt and that of Loula (Evans) Jones, both members of the class of 1893.

Rosaline (Jenkins) Gilmore, General Chairman of the Alumnae Campaign for the Second Century Fund, gave a report on the progress of the campaign to date.

The final number on the program was "The Builders," a dramatic sketch picturing critical periods in Wesleyan's history. Helen (Farmer) Popejoy read the lines in the finished and professional way in which she presents her radio programs over WMAZ.

The Alumnae Day Speaker

Kwe Yuin Kiang, Wesleyan's own alumna of the class of 1926, and now principal of Laura Haygood School in Soochow, Methodism's mission school in Kwe Yuin's country, named in honor of another Wesleyan alumna, was the Alumnae Day speaker.

Kwe Yuin flew to Macon from New York, where she is doing graduate work at Columbia, arriving late Friday night. She was met at the airport by a Wesleyan group, among them her college classmate, Katherine (Lowe) Clarke of Marshallville, whom she recognized at once and greeted enthusiastically, asking about Katherine's family by name. A number of the Commencement guests were her special friends who came to hear her speak, among these Ruth Field of Guilford College, N. C., former missionary to Japan.

Kwe Yuin was introduced on Saturday by Mary Culler White, A.B. '91, returned missionary to China and friend of Kwe Yuin. The speaker wore a lovely wine-colored dress in traditional Chinese style, with embroidered figures. Her use of English is easy and flawless, and she used no notes but spoke from her heart with a sincerity which moved all her hearers.

"It was on this campus," she said, "that I spent two of the happiest and most profitable years of my life, and some of my Wesleyan friends, Dr. and Mrs. Quillian, Professor Daniel, and Mrs. Comer among them, have exerted an influence through all my life. The hardest studying I ever did was here.

"Wesleyan gave me a solid foundation for Christian living. I am proud to be connected with the institution which we consider the finest in the world. I want to bear you living witness of what Wesleyan has meant to China. Laura Haygood laid the foundation for Christian education in China; my connection with the school extends over the past twenty years.

"The spirit of service which Wesleyan taught has kept me, and other teachers in China going during our terrible difficulties of the recent war years. When the Japanese invasion was imminent, we left our buildings in Soochow and walked for 4½ months to Chungking to keep our school going. After V-J Day we returned to our school in six hours to begin repairing and refurnishing the school. (Six times during the war, we started from scratch with our rehabilitation program, only to be driven away again.) The last time, we found 1,000 soldiers on the campus, the buildings stripped of furnishings, the grounds cut up with trenches.

Our greatest need now is for Christian leaders in China. Many of our young people are turning to Communism as a solution for their difficulties. We know a better way, the way of Christian democracy.

"Young people, consider seriously as you choose your life work, lending a hand to our young people of China."

In the early afternoon, Kwe Yuin and her classmates of '26 were guests of Freda (Kaplan) Nadler in her lovely new home on Wesleyan Drive, and later she attended a tea for reunion classes at Linda (Anderson) Lane's. In the evening she was with Nettie Peacock, returned missionary to China, and Mary (Nicholson) Ainsworth for supper with Mrs. Ainsworth. Sunday morning she flew back to New York to be there for the commencement exercises at Columbia.

The Golden Anniversary Class Reunion

Wesleyan was proud indeed to welcome the Class of '98 back for the celebration of its fiftieth anniversary. And of the many distinguished visitors during Commencement week truly none added more charm, elegance or gaiety to both the College and Conservatory campuses than did the seven members of this Class who were able to be present for their Golden Reunion.

Lucy (Evans) Stephens was spokesman for her Class at the Alumnae Day program in the Conservatory chapel. The group was seated on the stage and as Lucy presented each of her classmates to the audience more than one Alumna found herself wondering if her own fiftieth reunion would find her as youthful in spirit and gracious in manner as these honored delegates from the Class of '98 so emphatically were.

Lucy delighted those present with her witty, informal reminiscences about their school days. She recalled how Commencement rites of fifty years ago got off to an early start at 8 o'clock in the morning. "We, too, were dressed for the occasion very much as the girls of today dress—now it's called the 'New Look,'" she said with a twinkle in her eye. "In our time, Wesleyan girls were not allowed dates, walking on the front porch was forbidden and going to town unchaperoned not to be thought of. But even then there was always something exciting going on—the College caught fire four times, I recall."

Among the causes which this class had advocated was the appointment of Alumnae to the Board of Trustees, and she spoke of their satisfaction later when Wesleyan graduates began to serve on the Board.

Lucy is a splendid speaker with a poise and address which a professional lecturer might well envy. Brief though her remarks were they were of an unforgettable flavor and piquancy.

Tea for 1918-1921

On Saturday afternoon Linda (Anderson) Lane gave a lovely tea for the classes of 1918 through 1921 at her home on Hines Terrace. With Linda in the receiving line were Rosaline (Jenkins) Gilmore, president of 1919 and Marion (Cook) Murphy, president of 1918, and Ida (Shelnutt) Wyll, class bride of 1920.

Assisting in receiving the guests were: Jennie (Loyall) Anderson, Betty (Davenport) Plant, Mildred (Taylor) Stevens, Edith (Culpepper) Turpin, and Kitty (Cater) Jones.

The five charming girls who served were Linda's daughter, Linda, Rosaline Gilmore's daughter, Rosaline, Evelyn Smith and Evelyn McGarrity from Wesleyan Conservatory, and Emily Mallet, Linda's niece and Mary (Lane) Mallet's daughter.

The Baccalaureate Sermon

The Baccalaureate sermon was held, according to tradition, at Mulberry Street Methodist church, where many Wesleyan presidents have preached. Dr. Pierce Harris of First Methodist Church, Atlanta, delivered the sermon to a more-than-capacity congregation.

Graduation Exercises

Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, pastor of Christ Church in New York City, gave the literary address on Monday, May 31, the overflow crowds hearing him over loud speakers in the college parlor and the music studio of Prof. Joseph Maerz.

Doris (Onderdonk) Jelks was organist for this occasion, as for the Alumnae Day procession.

Evelyn McGarrity sang Tschaiakowsky's "Adieu, forets" from Jeanne d'Arc. Dr. Samuel T. Senter gave the invocation and the benediction.

Honors

Magna cum laude graduates were: Peggy Beeson, Emily Bell, Leanore Dippy, Elizabeth Harman, Jane McCowen, Beverly Reichert (holder of R. A. Bowen Alumnae Scholarship); Henrietta Sisk, Elizabeth (Conner) Tucker, Evelyn Smith, Betsy Chipman, Mary Louise Cramer, Valeria McCullough.

Cum laude graduates were: Annie Anderson, daughter of Annie (Gantt) Anderson, granddaughter of the late Eugenia (Jones) Gantt; Rosemary Bounds; Ann Bridgers (for three years student assistant in the Alumnae Office); Blanchie Burgess; Mary Chambers (Olive Defoor Brittain, Atlanta Club Scholarships); Virginia Green; Elizabeth Hean (daughter of Petrona (Humber) Hean, granddaughter of the late Fannie (Garrard) Humber; Mary McCowen (president of the class, Rivoli campus); Mary Pate; Betty Sealy; Anne Vinson; Leonabeth Collins; Angus Domingos, Jr., son of Florence (Howard) Domingos, grandson of the late Alice (McKenzie) Domingos and of the late Martha (Bowman) Howard; Nona Hodges, daughter of Naomi (Smith) Hodges; Kathleen Boyd, Nancy Claymore (Ruth Benedict Watson Alumnae Scholarship); Annabelle Jarrett; Hazel Rees; Virginia Rowland; Anne Whipple (holder of Leon Perdue Smith Alumnae Scholarship).

Elected to membership in the Phi Delta Phi Honor Society at the liberal arts college were: Peggy Beeson, Emily Bell, Leanore Dippy, Elizabeth Harman, Jane McCowen, Beverly Reichert, Henrietta Sisk, Elizabeth (Conner) Tucker.

Elected to membership in Mu Alpha Omega, honor society of the Conservatory were: Betsy Chipman, Evelyn Smith, Mary Louise Cramer, Valeria McCullough.

The WMAZ award of $100 given by this radio station to the student doing the best work in this department went to Alice Wasden of Millen.

The Ross-Walker award of $25 for excellence in spoken English, given by Hermione (Ross) Walker of Atlanta, went to Beverly Reichert.

Wesleyan's 'Grand Lady' Honored

On her retirement as Alumnae Trustee, Dorothy (Blount) Lamar of Macon received resolutions of appreciation from the Wesleyan Alumnae Association.

The resolution presented by Jennie (Loyall) Anderson mentioned that she is written up in "Who's Who" as a publicist, as president-general of the U.D.C., as director of the Robert E. Lee Foundation, chairman of a committee to advance the name of Sidney Lanier for the Hall of Fame, radio speaker, book reviewer, author of articles and pamphlets, but that alumnae of Wesleyan love her best for her continuous and unchanging loyalty to her Alma Mater, and for the innumerable ways in which she has proved this loyalty through the years.

President's Son Weds Wesleyan Girl

Dr. Silas Johnson performed the ceremony when Betty Talkington, Conservatory '49, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Talkington of Jackson, Tenn., became the bride of his son, Douglas Johnson, at the Hays Avenue Methodist Church in Jackson on Sunday afternoon, June 27.

Dr. and Mrs. Johnson entertained at a buffet supper for the bridal party and out-of-town guests on Saturday evening preceding the wedding rehearsal. Mrs. Johnson received with the bride and groom and the bride's mother at the wedding reception which Mr. and Mrs. Talkington gave at the New Southern Hotel in Jackson after the ceremony.

The young couple are spending their honeymoon at Highlands, N. C., after which Douglas will return to Emory University where he is a medical student and Betty will resume her studies at Wesleyan Conservatory.

Faculty Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard Bosch, both of the Wesleyan faculty, have a son, Jarir Kheirallah Bosch, born April 21. The baby's first name is for a Persian poet, and was promptly shortened to "Jerry." Mr. Bosch is associate professor of ceramics and pottery, and his mother, Gulnar Kheirallah Bosch, is professor of fine arts.

Ralph Lawton, pianist and artist in residence at Wesleyan, is in Europe for the summer, dividing his time between teaching and concerts. He played at Wigmore Hall in London on June 25 and later at Pleyel Hall in Paris.

Katherine P. Carnes, '13, Wesleyan Librarian, and Nanette Rozar, Conservatory dietician, were honored when the Class of 1948 dedicated the Vetterloft to them. Of Katherine, the Seniors said: "She presides over the library with a gracious warmth and charm that have endeared her to all Wesleyan. Her sympathetic understanding has encouraged us, while her vivacity, enthusiasm and sparkling humor have invited our friendship."

Miss Rozar, daughter of Josephine (Whitehurst) Rozar, '81, was cited as one who "sincerely helps us meet the future by keeping our bodies strong and sound."

Prof. J. W. W. Daniel, professor emeritus and lecturer in history, was one of seven members of the Class of 1898 to attend the Golden Anniversary reunion at Wofford College in Spartanburg, S. C., in June. While there he saw Dr. Walter K. Greene, former Dean of Wesleyan College, who is now president of Wofford.

Miss Beatrice Horsbrugh, associate professor of violin, French and German, is spending the summer in her native England with her family.

Wesleyan girls will be interested to hear that Miss Louise Rivers of Greenwood, S. C., who resigned as a member of the English faculty several years ago because of illness, was sufficiently recovered this year to commute to Due West, S. C., three days a week to teach at Erskine College. Mrs. Effie Rivers, her mother, is also improving after an illness.

Professor Joseph Maerz has a grandson, born in April, the son of Paul Maerz and his wife of Columbus. The baby has been named "Joseph Glenn" in honor of Professor Maerz and his wife, who was for many years a member of the Wesleyan faculty as head of the department of violin, and is to be called "Glenn" for Mrs. Maerz.

NEWLY APPOINTED DEAN

Doris Onderdonk Jelks, who has been a member of the Wesleyan music faculty for 25 years, has been named Dean of the Wesleyan Conservatory of Music and School of Fine Arts to succeed Annabel Horn, '07, whose resignation became effective at the close of the college year.

Mrs. Jelks was Professor of Organ and Piano at Wesleyan before she became Dean. During her years at Wesleyan she has made a place for herself not only on the campus, but in music circles throughout Georgia. The Morning Music Club of Macon recently chose her as its president. She is past dean of the local chapter of the American Guild of Organists; ever since she came to Macon she has been organist at Christ Church where she is also director of choirs.

Holder of the Bachelor of Music degree from Syracuse University, the new dean spent last summer studying modern American composers at the Yale School of Music for which purpose she had been awarded a Carnegie grant. This study was reflected later in the masterfully executed program, featuring American music of the past two centuries, which she played before a large audience in the Conservatory auditorium on the evening of January 30. Her performance of Aaron Copeland's Sonata at her concert was the first presentation of the contemporary work in the South. So unusual was this concert that the librarian in charge of Americans in the New York Public Library asked for a copy of the program for the library.

At college commencements and on other important Wesleyan occasions, Mrs. Jelks has been a familiar figure at the organ or piano, sometimes playing as soloist, again as accompanist for fellow musicians or students. And in addition to her constant and loyal service to Wesleyan, she has played for hundreds of social and civic gatherings and weddings in Macon.

Mrs. Jelks is a person of unusual energy, combining a heavy teaching schedule, many professional engagements, and homemaking in a manner that denotes intelligent planning as well as talent and skill. Her husband is Dr. Albert A. Jelks and their home on Park View Drive in Macon is a center of pleasant hospitality. They have two children, Albert, Jr., who is in business in Macon, and Jordan, who will enter high school in September. Jordan played in the Wesleyan Drama Department's production of "Peter Pan" last spring, pleasing his audience very much as one of the Darling children in the Barrie classic.

In making the announcement of Mrs. Jelks' appointment by the executive committee of the Board of Trustees, Dr. Silas Johnson, President of Wesleyan College declared: "I feel that Mrs. Jelks is better prepared than anyone else to carry forward the magnificent work done by Miss Horn."

Former Dean Becomes Assistant to President

Annabel Horn, A.B. 1906

In 1941, when Bishop Arthur J. Moore was president and Dr. Silas Johnson was executive vice-president of Wesleyan, Annabel Horn, A.B. 1906, was brought to the conservatory of music and school of fine arts as dean and registrar, since it was felt that the institution needed at that time just the organizing ability and vision which are her unique qualities.

This year, after seven years of her administration, the institution shows marked growth in every respect and is recognized among the leading schools of its kind in the country. In the spring

Annabel Horn, feeling that her work at the conservatory was completed, tendered her resignation.

Wesleyan trustees, unwilling to let her go, offered her a promotion to the position of Assistant to the President, which she has accepted. Annabel Horn will live next year on the Rivoli campus, and her field now will be with curriculum planning for both the college of liberal arts and the conservatory. Her years of experience in the education field and her keen intellectual perception are especially adapted to work of this nature.

Alumnae Office Entertains Seniors

The Alumnae Office staff entertained the members of the class of 1948 on May 26 to welcome them into the Alumnae Association.

Members of the senior classes at the liberal arts college and the conservatory called throughout the day in groups small enough to be seated in the reception room of the Alumnae Office in Tate Hall. Eunice Thomson, Alumnae Director, greeted them and talked informally about the work of the Alumnae Association.

Alumna Writes of School of Nursing

"Until Now," issued by The Banner Press of Emory University, is Maybelle (Jones) Dewey's history of the Emory Hospital and School of Nursing.

In 235 interesting pages, she tells of the founding of Wesley Memorial Hospital in 1905, of its struggles through the years, and its status today on the university campus.

Among the names mentioned in the book are those of many Wesleyan alumnae, Pat Fulwood, who is now a lieutenant in the U. S. Army Nurse Corps stationed at Ft. Benning; Minnie B. (Bass) Schell, now a major with the Nurse Corps, stationed in Seattle, Washington; Anne (Trippe) Rambo, former president of the Woman's Auxiliary, and Elizabeth (Jenkins) Rece, also former president of this organization.

The thrilling story of Asa Candler's gift of a million dollars to establish Emory University, and the part that the two Candler brothers, Asa G. and Bishop Warren A. Candler, played in its founding makes interesting reading. These two strong-willed men, the giant in finance and the giant in religion, would have long fiery arguments, tables would be pounded, ultimatums issued. Then, peace would come, differences be adjusted, and the brothers would go forward, literally arm in arm, both with the dream of a great university planted on the ideals of Christian faith.

Maybelle (Jones) Dewey has done a valuable piece of work in assembling the facts about the Emory School of Nursing, and she well deserves the orchids which she wore at the Wesleyan Alumnae luncheon when she and Willie (Snow) Ethridge were jointly honored in the spring.

Maerz Plans Chopin Album

Joseph Maerz at the Piano

Professor Joseph Maerz left on August 9 for Chicago to make the album of Chopin recordings in Universal Studios under the auspices of The Wesleyan Alumnae Association. More than a hundred reservations have already come in for the album, and so many requests for special numbers to be included in the program that serious consideration is being given to the possibility of including five instead of the promised four records in the album—for the same price of $10.00.

Most of the summer has been spent by the artist in practicing, timing, selecting a program, and planning for the recordings. Just before leaving for Chicago, Professor Maerz came to Wesleyan with a tentative program and format for the art work on the album.

"An Hour with Chopin" has been suggested as title for the album which will play for approximately an hour. The outside cover will carry a photograph of Professor Maerz's hands at the piano, and inside a photograph of the pianist at work on a musical score, both of these the work of Miss Rosita Gostin of Macon. Inside of the cover will be a brief biographical sketch, program notes, the lows:

"To the artist's many friends and pupils of present and former years, this album of Chopin recordings is produced and distributed under the sponsorship of The Wesleyan Alumnae Association of Wesleyan College, Macon, Georgia."

Program

The program as planned after careful consideration of all requests is:

1. a—Impromptu, A flat
b—Nocturne, D flat
2. a—B Major Prelude and Aeolian Etude
b—Two Etudes, Op. 25, Nos. 2 and 3
3. a—Mazurka, B minor
b—Waltz, E minor
Prelude, A major
4. a—Ballade, A flat (first side)
b—Ballade, A flat (second side)
5. a—Berceuse
b—Nocturne F sharp

Return with $10.00 to

The Alumnae Office,

One Alumna Learns About Her Alma Mater

In May Wesleyan called to the campus all the leaders for the Second Century Fund campaign—ministers, alumnae, laymen, to discuss plans for the campaign. Rebecca (Caudill) Ayars made a flying trip to Macon from Urbana, Illinois, to represent the Alumnae-at-Large. On her return she wrote this letter to the alumnae in her area. It gives, we think, a very good picture of the college today, and of her needs for tomorrow.

Dear Alumna:

I have just come home from Wesleyan. I went down to the college because, as the representative of 360 Wesleyan alumnae living in 26 states, I wanted to satisfy myself as to why Wesleyan was asking us to contribute to a $2,000,000 fund at this time. I satisfied myself fully. Now I want to share what I learned with you.

I have been getting a great deal of mail from Wesleyan lately. So have you. I gathered from the campaign literature I received that Wesleyan's physical plant at Rivoli is a showpiece; that the Conservatory is doing some of the South's best work in painting and sculpture, in music, in ceramics, in radio; that remodeling has been going on at the Conservatory and that a beautiful new chapel is about to be built at Rivoli. These are tangible things that one can see and hear and compare.

But I went to Wesleyan looking for intangibles. I wanted to learn to what degree Wesleyan is aware of today's social, political, and economic problems, especially as they relate to the South. I wanted to learn with what courage and foresight she is training students to meet today's challenges and opportunities not only in the South, but everywhere. I wanted to learn, if I could, the vitality of the religion taught at Wesleyan. I wanted to learn what Wesleyan was dreaming for the future.

I was at Wesleyan only a short time, but I talked with many people. Supplementary to the many discussions was the latest Wesleyan catalog, which I read on the train as I came away. I am writing to you because, after my visit, I am so thoroughly convinced of the wisdom of the things that Wesleyan is doing, and thinking, and saying, and preparing for.

I found at Wesleyan a president with vision, a man characterized by simplicity and a love of his job, even the hard parts of his job, like raising $2,000,000. I found teachers and administrators earnest and forward-looking and capable. I found students who were not only pretty to look at but who sent thrills up and down my spine because they know so much and care so deeply. I found less emphasis on the past and more on the present and the future. I found less concern with conformity, more with Christianity. I came away proud and happy, for I had caught a vision, too.

And I came away knowing how badly Wesleyan needs $2,000,000. It wants to square itself with the world by paying in full those bondholders who settled for less. It wants to pay its teachers decent salaries. It can't go on asking its Ph.D., experienced heads of departments to teach for so little. It wants to enlarge and enrich its religious program—an area in which Wesleyan serves with distinction. It wants to provide additional scholarships to attract outstanding students. And it wants just a few extra dollars so that when emergencies arise, it will find a little something when it puts its hand in its pocket.

Generally, I am not very good at asking for money. I sympathize too quickly with those who feel they have little or nothing to give. I know what it's like to feel that way. But I am not ashamed to ask for money for Wesleyan.

If you haven't already sent a check or a signed pledge card (and to date only a few of you have) won't you please do so at once? Please give as generously as you can, knowing as you must that no amount is too small or too large. Mail your contribution or your pledge card to the president, Dr. Silas Johnson, at Wesleyan. It will be a sign to all who share the name of Wesleyan that you believe in Wesleyan, too, and that you want a stake in its auspicious future. I wager that nothing else you do today will be so worthwhile or bear such happy consequences.

Very sincerely,

Rebecca (Caudill) Ayars

The Wesleyan Second Century Fund The Alumnae Loyalty Fund

Wesleyan alumnae pledged themselves through their Alumnae Council meeting on December 7, 1947, to give their full cooperation and help to the Second Century Fund campaign now in progress. The annual Alumnae Loyalty Fund, with the exception of certain designated gifts made toward scholarships or special projects already begun, is not this year stressed as a separate fund.

The following list includes the names of all alumnae who have given to either of these funds to date (August 1, 1948) when the magazine goes to press. The November magazine will carry the names of additional contributors.

* * * * *

The total number of alumnae contributing 1,202

The total amount contributed by alumnae $89,280.00

* * * * *

If your name is not on this list, remember—It is not too late for you to make your gift to your Alma Mater.

Send your contribution to The Alumnae Office, Wesleyan College, Macon, Georgia. You may state if you wish it to go for scholarships for use next year. If you do not specify, it will be put into the Second Century Fund.

If you will, please make your pledge over a period of two years, payments to be made in any way you wish. If you prefer to send your gift to Wesleyan each year as you are able, we shall be glad to have it that way.

Do not withhold your gift to Wesleyan because it cannot be as large as you would like. Every gift is appreciated, and we are eager that every alumna shall have a part in Wesleyan's Second Century Fund!

Scenes From May Day Ceremonies

ANNIE ANDERSON AS MAY QUEEN

THE MAYPOLE DANCE

MAY QUEEN'S COURT

Atlanta

Under the able leadership of Nonie (Acree) Quillian the Atlanta Club has had a wonderful year, high-lighted by their sponsorship of "Peter Pan," by the Wesleyan speech department. Jacqueline (Howard) Edwards was the chairman in charge of this production.

The club sponsored a luncheon honoring Willie (Snow) Ethridge and Maybelle (Jones) Dewey, entertained for the Wesleyan students.

Officers of the Atlanta Club are:

President, Nonie (Acree) Quillian; vice-president in charge of groups, Martha (Aiken) Pendergrast; vice-president in charge of ways and means, Jacqueline (Howard) Edwards; vice-president in charge of publicity, Margaret (Munroe) Thrower; corresponding secretary, Angela Wilkerson; treasurer, Vera (Brown) Thompson; recording secretary, Mary (Michaux) McPherson.

In the absence of the president on Alumnae Day Martha (Aiken) Pendergrast presented to Wesleyan the club's gift from the proceeds of Peter Pan.

Augusta

The Augusta Wesleyan Club was represented at Commencement by Margie (Fiske) Stewart, president; Elizabeth B. Jones, corresponding secretary, and Ida (Stephens) Williams, former president.

The club, with an active membership of 18, has held meetings every other month during the year. In September the club had a Coca-Cola party at the home of Elizabeth Jones for the girls from Augusta who were leaving for Wesleyan. In November a luncheon meeting was held at Sun Glow College. In January Lucille (Trowbridge) Marks was hostess to the club, and Mrs. Frederick A. Ware spoke on "Getting the Most Out of Reading." A $25 bond was presented to the college.

In March a luncheon meeting was held and new officers elected as follows: President, Margie (Fiske) Stewart; Vice-President, May Belle (Power) Miller; Secretary, Mary (Fiske) Magruder; Corresponding Secretary, Elizabeth B. Jones; Treasurer, Ida (Stephens) Williams.

Columbus

The Columbus Club climaxed its year's program with a review of "It's Greek To Me," by Willie Snow Ethridge, '20, the review having been presented by Rebekah (Oliphant) Anthony, '23.

Preceding the book review, Bessie Sue (Taylor) Gaines, '21, retiring president presided at a brief business session in which the slate of officers for the next year were read by Weeta (Watts) Mathews, '19, chairman of the nominating committee.

The new officers are as follows: Mary Ann (Mathews) Pease, '44, president; Frances (Jones) Duskin, '41, vice-president; Lucile (Lyon) Callaway '28, secretary; Helen (Buck) Berequist, '40, treasurer; Minnie (Smith) Faber, '16, publicity director.

Ellaville

A meeting of the Wesleyan Alumnae of Ellaville was held early in June with Maurine (Munro) Maudtin, '24, and Addie (Smith) Munro. Records were played presenting a dramatic history of Wesleyan and plans were discussed for raising funds for the Second Century Fund. Contributions were made and a report was phoned to Eunice Thomson, '25, Alumnae director. Refreshments were served in the dining room.

Those present were: Bobbie (Royal) Rainey, '10, Bessie Lou (Sears) Lightner, '04, Rena D. (Weaver) Stevens, '18, Mervin (Johnson) Hill, '22, Mary Lou (Drane) Jordan, '03, and Ida Matilda (Munro) Murray, '15.

Thomaston

The officers of the Wesleyan Alumnae Club of Thomaston were entertained at a luncheon at the home of the president, Rachel (McDaniel) Nelson, '32, on May 19. Rosaline (Jenkins) Gilmore, '19, was an honored guest and discussed the Second Century Fund Campaign of which she is general chairman for the Alumnae Division.

The object of the get-together was to complete the club's organization. Plans were suggested for a tea for the members of the junior and senior classes of R. E. Lee High School.

Other officers of the club are as follows: Vice-president, Lassie (Humphries) Gates, '24; secretary, Anne (Gilmore) New, '49; treasurer, Mary Chatfield, '20; Second Century Fund chairman, Frances (Horner) Middlebrooks, '27; membership, Effie (McDaniel) Ingram, '25, and nominations, Gheraltine (Knox) Holland, '24, and Martha (Benms) Reeves, '32; high school relations, Lydie (King) Greene, '25; publicity, Martha (Davis) Moseley, '34, and Sarah Ann (Kilpatrick) Head.

Roberta (Jones) Gardiner
Heads Macon Alumnae

Macon

The Wesleyan Alumnae Club of Macon, with Belle (Ross) Valentine as president, had charge of the Alumnae Day Luncheon, decorations, etc. Belle served as local chairman of the Commencement activities, appointing committees for the alumnae occasions.

The club held a meeting on Saturday afternoon, immediately following the luncheon for a report of the year's work and election of new officers. The club sponsored the appearance of Ruth Draper, monologist, and of Forrest (Pitts) Blackwell of Birmingham, Ala., lecturer, to make money for their scholarships to Macon seniors. The students to whom these awards were made is announced elsewhere in the magazine.

New officers of the Macon club are: President, Roberta (Jones) Gardiner; vice-president in charge of high school relations, Margaret (Black) Pittman; vice-president in charge of benefits, Mildred (Goodrum) Heyward; vice-president in charge of college-civic relations, Eloise (Davis) Culverhouse; secretary, Martha (Orr) Hutcherson; treasurer, Margaret (Murfhey) Martin; Group Chairmen: I, Mary (Nicholson) Ainsworth; II, Sarah (Flowers) Jennings; III, Emma (Drew) Clay; IV, Carolyn (Lawton) Harrell; V, Frances (Brooks) Worley; VI, Louise Pate.

Three Macon high school girls were given scholarships to Wesleyan, two to the college of liberal arts and one to the conservatory, as follows: Ann Clark, Betty Jean Williams, and Patsy Walsh. Patsy was also awarded a $100 scholarship from the Miller High School Dramatic Club, of which Mary Alfriend is sponsor.

Wesleyan Graduate Heads Oldest Girl Scout Camp

The oldest Girl Scout camp in the United States, Camp Bonnie Brae in the Berkshire Hills of western Massachusetts, is being directed this summer by a Wesleyan Alumna, Jeannette Deaver, '38, who has already made an enviable record as a Girl Scout executive.

After holding an important position with the Girl Scouts of Boston, Mass., for five years, Jeannette received a scholarship from the National Girl Scouts and the Detroit Council of Social Agencies for graduate study at Wayne University in the School of Public Affairs and Social Work, one of seven such scholarships granted for outstanding service. And while she conducts Camp Bonnie Brae, she is also gathering material for a thesis based on scientific research in group work, the field in which she is engaged at Wayne.

Last year the young director spent the major portion of her time working in the Recreation and Group Therapy department of the Detroit Orthopaedic Clinic with club groups of emotionally disturbed and physically handicapped children from 12 years and upward in age. Continuing her study at Wayne this fall, Jeannette and her immediate supervisor will be the only workers in what she calls a "pioneering project" at the Merrill-Palmer School in Detroit, the organization of and working with a group of neighborhood children and an adult club, composed of their mothers. "An interpretive job" Jeannette calls the undertaking.

Her professional association with the Girl Scout program began in 1941 as field director of Waterbury, Conn., and from there she went to the Boston office. As summer director of the Massachusetts camp, Jeannette heads a staff which is drawn from all sections of the nation, among whose members is Bruce Flanders of Sebring, Fla., daughter of Bruce (Cleckler) Flanders, '22.

Jeannette Deaver

Since the early days of Scouting Wesleyan Alumnae have played an important role in the development of a program which has made and continues to make such a far reaching contribution to American youth. Many other Alumnae are holding responsible positions in Girl Scout work, some as executives, others as volunteers who give their time and talents to groups in their own communities. Among those who are making a career in this field are Margaret Chapman, '28, of New York, assistant editor of all Scout publications; Mary Julian Denton, '37, executive director in Mobile, Ala.; and Martha Martin, '45, field director in Macon.

Wesleyan Alumna Speaks in Chapel in May

Inspirational in theme was the talk which Annie (Turner) Hightower, '09, of Thomaston made at Chapel on May 18 on the subject, "The Way Home." A thorough student of the Bible and teacher of the Young Adult Class in the First Methodist Church in Thomaston, Annie gave Wesleyan students practical rules for using the greatest of all books as a guide.

"In these last days before Commencement, there is one idea uppermost in all of your minds, more important, even to the Seniors than their long coveted and perhaps hard won diplomas; the most important thing in the world right now is 'Going Home.' Already some of you have the family car here waiting to take you over the highways at the first possible moment; others have arranged transportation by rail or bus.

"When we first began to travel in automobiles, along in 1907-08, when I was at Wesleyan, road signs were few and far between; state and federal markers unknown. The AAA published what was known as the Blue Book, describing in minutest detail, every crook and turn of the road, every building and distinguishing landmark along the way. As we drove we diligently kept the place in the book in order not to get lost!

"For our journey through life, on the way which leads to our Father's house, the Bible is indeed our Blue Book. If we will but read and heed, it will guide us safely all the way, for it marks the highway home. Truly 'Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path,' Psalm 119:105. Let no one discourage you and tell you that the Way this Book teaches is a 'via dolorosa.' Is the way that leads home ever grievous? There are trials and disappointments in every life, but that One who is the Way, the Truth, and the Life, said in John 9:10, 'I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly.'

"Moreover, whatever trials may beset us on the road, we are never alone. There is One who walks with us on the road; One who whispers in our ear, as we are told in Isaiah 30:21, 'This is the Way, walk ye in it;' and in Hebrews 13:5, 'I will never leave thee nor forsake thee.'

"Many temptations and enticing detours are along the road; sometimes we forget to use our book. John Bunyan, one of the great Christians of all times, declared, 'Sin keeps me from this Book; this Book keeps me from sin.' Only by the study of God's Holy Word may we know His will for us, that we may walk safely in the way that leads home. Jesus saith unto us today: 'I am the Way, the Truth, the Life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me.' God bless you and give you a joyous journey!"

Annie prefaced her address by paying tribute to her beloved teachers, "Cousin 'Ria" Burks, and Professor Koets, to Dr. Jenkins, former president, and to Eling Soong Kung, her classmate. She was introduced by Rosaline (Jenkins) Gilmore, '19, who referred to her interest in young people as reflected in her generous contributions to schools and colleges through the Methodist Church and the Daughters of the American Revolution. She mentioned the lovely Hightower parlor on the Rivoli campus made possible by the Hightower family. "Although Annie insists that she is not a speaker, she is very much in demand as a speaker. Her greatest charm is her naturalness and sincerity, which come from deep religious convictions and constant Bible study," Rosaline declared.

Souvenirs of Other Wesleyan Days

Hidden away in attics, old trunks and book cases is a wealth of material, which if unearthed and brought to light would be of great value and significance to Wesleyan Alumnae. Old notebooks, programs, catalogues and souvenirs of earlier days when our mothers, grandmothers, great-grandmothers, aunts and cousins were girls at Wesleyan form an important section of the Historical Collection—please, dear Alumnae, won't you go exploring and send your cherished mementos to add to our Archives? The notebooks, described in the following story, represent the type of factual material which is most helpful to all students of Wesleyan history.

When Irene (Lindsey) Holt's granddaughter, Betty Faye Holt of Atlanta, a member of the present senior class, returned to the Wesleyan campus last fall, she brought with her two English composition books which had been Irene's when she was at Wesleyan in the Class of '88. The faded pages, covered with exercises written in the fine, careful script of the period, reveal much of the character of a gentle, studious girl, sensitive to and in harmony with life. Her teacher, the beloved Dr. Cosby Smith, a favorite at the college, had written "Excellent" on many of her compositions. On one entitled, "The Crusades," he had penned: "A clear beautiful narrative." Later when Irene married David Abner Holt, of Bass, Texas, they named their son, John Cosby Holt, for her professor. Mr. Holt is Betty Fay's father.

Irene's themes cover a wide range of subjects, varying from Shakespearean characters to such topics as "Wasted Life," "Story of a Penny," or "Reflections in a Cemetery." Writing on "School Girl," she decided that "a school girl's life is the happiest of all. She has nothing to do but behave herself and learn her lessons." In her "History of My Junior Year at College" she says: "At 5 o'clock, October 5, '86, I found myself standing in front of that grand old building, Wesleyan Female College, where beneath its lofty tower, I would undergo the hardships of a Junior . . . I was determined to learn all I could and make use of time while young." At the end of this narrative, Professor Smith had written: "My dear pupil. You have always pleased me well. May God bless you while you live here and then grant you eternal life."

In "My Home," Irene's description of her home in Irwinton leaves a picture of a happy, cultured household with a father, whose study is lined with book cases filled mostly with law books, and a mother whose pantry shelves hold things delightful to the taste. In the parlor are hung family portraits and in a corner of the room is the piano which had been her birthday gift.

For the Historical Collection

During Commencement Wesleyan received for the Historical Collection the sophomore report of Anna Rush dated December 23, 1859. It was given by this alumna's granddaughter, Rosaline (Jenkins) Gilmore, and her great-granddaughter, Rosaline Gilmore, who received the A.B. degree with the class of 1948.

An explanation of the grading system at the bottom of the page states: "The grades of merit are from 100, the best, to 500, the worst."

In the Phi Mu Room at Wesleyan Conservatory is Anna Rush's pin, placed there by her granddaughter.

Life At Wesleyan During the 1860's

The diary of Lou Burge, A.B. 1861, is preserved at the Georgia Archives in Atlanta, of which Louise (Frederick) Hays is Director. Recently Lucy (Evans) Stephens, A.B. '98, sent to Wesleyan a clipping telling of the diary. Lou Burge was the step-sister of Sadie (Burge) Gray, who was a Wesleyan roommate of Lucy's sister, Ida (Evans) Eve, A.B. '72. The newspaper account gives the following story of Lou Burge's college days:

"Lou was a senior at Wesleyan at the outbreak of hostilities, and paints a graphic picture of college life against a background of war, with boy friends of the students being fitted into uniforms and leaving for the battle front.

"The entry for January 19, 1861, is headed 'Still in College,' and reads as follows:

'At two o'clock the bells downtown were rung, cannon fired, and the people shouted. For at two o'clock the Empire State of the South passed the Ordinance of Secession and declared herself free and independent by severing all ties that bound her formally to the Union.'

'January 21: Macon is illuminated in honor of the secession of Georgia. Every city street is illuminated. College looks beautiful. We had fine fun fixing up our room—then S. Gilmer, Hun Redding, G. Dozier, W. Bonnell, Em Bellamy, Gin Turnbull, Bud Redding and I fixed up the Philomathean Hall. We had two flags bearing Georgia and Florida upon them, floating from the windows. The torch-light procession came by the college. The boys hollered for the Wesleyan Female College girls; 'twas an exciting time. All companies were out; also the Minute men.

'February: Alexander Stephens of Georgia, has been chosen vice-president, and Jefferson Davis of Mississippi president of the Provisional Government of the Southern Confederacy.

'April 20: Lucia E. Smith and I went to ride in Mr. Guinn's carriage; drove all over Macon, returning through Vineville. Downtown everything is bustle and preparation. The Macon Volunteers and the Floyd Riflemen leave tonight for Virginia. Em Bellamy spent nearly the whole evening in my room crying about the war and John Hix Boss who leaves tonight. She and Fannie Perkins went down to Mr. Saulsbury's to tell him goodbye. Between her and Cousin Emma Ward crying about Ed Guinn, I have had a time of it. The girls are almost all crying. Guinn Gothin's feelings have overcome her; she has gone to bed, sick with crying about Bush Lumsden who doesn't care a snap for her. Ridiculous! I can hear Susie Clayton screaming down in her room. I am glad that I am not in love if that is the way I would have to do if my sweetheart should leave for the war.

'Lou Burge was forced to leave school early in May on account of ill health, and never returned, but her journal continued at home until she was too ill to write. She died in 1863 at the age of 19.'

Dorothy (Rogers) Tilly Honored

Dorothy (Rogers) Tilly, A.B. 1901, former Alumnae Trustee of Wesleyan, was named "Woman of the Year" in her home city of Atlanta this year in recognition of her valiant fight for justice and fair practice to all races. A gentle, soft-spoken person, she wins audiences to her way of thinking, and advocates education of all people toward a policy of brotherly kindness.

She has been on speaking tours over the South and East this spring explaining the purposes of President's Committee on Civil Rights, of which she was a member.

Her itinerary, which included several of the largest cities, ended at New York University. Many of her lectures were broadcast.

CLASS NOTES

Edwin Turner Bowden, Jr., grandson of the late Thulia (Whitehurst) Myrick, was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and graduated magna cum laude from Harvard University in June in the class which University officials declared had reached heights of excellence never before attained in Harvard's illustrious history. Edwin and his bride, the former Ann Haddon of Boston, will spend the winter in New Haven, Conn., where he will do graduate study in English literature at Yale. Edwin's great-grandmother was Elizabeth (Dowdell) Myrick of the Class of 1842, third class to graduate from Wesleyan, and his great-aunt, Mary (Myrick) Daniel, was one of three founders of the Philomathean Society, now the Phi Mu sorority, second oldest sorority in the United States. His parents are Col. Edwin T. Bowden of the U. S. Army and Allie Myrick Bowden. He prepared for Harvard at Phillips Exeter Academy.

Alice (Brimberry) Bussey has been honored by the Cuthbert Methodist Church whose members have voted to name the new annex to their church structure the "Alice B. Bussey Fellowship Hall" as an expression of "appreciation, gratitude and esteem" for their oldest living member, one of their most faithful and honored. Now in her 86th year, Alice continues active in the work of the church and has for several years worked diligently toward the securing of funds which made the large new building possible. Alice's classmates and Wesleyan friends still recall her commencement essay entitled, "Rich, Rare and Racy," which she read again at the Golden Anniversary reunion in 1928. She said at that time, "Girls of today have made so much progress that this essay is now rare, but neither rich nor racy!"

Claude (Freeman) Ross, whose essay on "The Wesleyan Bell" is treasured in the Wesleyan Historical Collection, died in July after a long illness. She was the daughter of Milo Shaw Freeman and Augusta Quarterman Freeman, and her grandfather, Azel R. Freeman, was the first business manager of Wesleyan. Surviving are her daughter, Mrs. Stewart

Jones, her granddaughter, Catherine Jones, and a number of nieces and nephews.

1886

A message of love and good wishes for her Alma Mater came from Anne (Allen) Johnston, Franklin, N. C., who is now 81 years old and not at all well, but who writes: "My oldest sister took first honor at Wesleyan, and two of my sisters taught there many years after graduation. I took four medals, so you see how I am bound to Wesleyan by many ties. I think it the most wonderful college in the world!"

1889

Ella (Anderson) Winter makes her home in Dothan, Ala., with her only son, who has two sons in college. She sends her love to her Alma Mater, and writes that Wesleyan has her continued loyalty and her prayers for the success of the Second Century Fund.

1890

Lila Mae Chapman represented the Macon Alumnae Association of Phi Mu sorority at the national convention held in June at Hotel Chamberlin, Old Point Comfort, Va.

Lillian (MacDonell) McKay writes: "My gift is sent with love and all good wishes, and with regrets that I am unable to be with you on Alumnae Day."

1891

"One dollar for each year since my graduation" is the unique and gracious way in which Sallie B. (Comer) Lathrop makes her gift each year to the Loyalty Fund. This year her check was for $57.00 and was, she writes, "something in the nature of a thank offering for being alive as I nearly passed over the Dark River last year."

Sympathy is extended to Alice (Feagan) Whipple in the death of her husband, Judge U. V. Whipple, Sr., on May 29 after a long illness. He had been one of the most active citizens in the creation of Crisp County and served as its first representative in the General Assembly. He was the first judge of the Superior Court of the Cordele Judicial Circuit. Members of the Crisp County Bar Association and charter members of the Baraca Class of the First Baptist Church formed an honorary escort at his funeral which was held at that church in which he had been a deacon for many years. Surviving children include Mrs. W. W. Lyons, Atlanta; Mr. U. V. Whipple, Jr., Cordele; Dr. R. L. Whipple, Alton, Ill., husband of Ruth (Ricketson) Whipple, '27.

Bessie (Fox) Beggs has a new grandson, a second child born to her daughter, Catherine. Bessie came to Macon when the baby was christened—the christening robe which the baby wore is more than a century old and has been used at all christenings in the family during that time.

Affectionate greetings and regrets at being unable to attend the Golden Anniversary reunion came from Mariah (Brumby) Sessions, who is teaching at Kansas City Bible College; Lillian (Crittenden) Sears who lives in Shellman; Geroma (Clark) Hargrove in Tampa, Fla.; Harriet (Goodman) Harman in Tifton; Nina (Lively) Kendricks in Savannah; Katie May (Peddy) Cuttino in Newnan; Eloise Pickett in Dawson; Willa Vida (Rambo) Murph in Marshallville.

Classmates and other Wesleyan friends were grieved to have word just after Commencement of the death of Pearl (Swift) Hallyburton at her home in Elberton following a long illness. The daughter of one of Elberton's pioneer families, Col. and Mrs. T. M. Swift, she is survived by her husband, Mr. T. J. Hallyburton, and a brother, Tom Swift, to whom sympathy is extended.

The class of 1901 made a valiant effort to get together for their forty-seventh anniversary this year. The effort was rewarded by letters from several of the girls containing information about their families and their lives, and some of them giving news of others of the class who were not heard from. The news in these letters is sure to be of so much interest to other members of the class that I am taking advantage of our Alumnae Magazine to pass it on to them and to urge them to send news of themselves, their families, and their activities to their classmates through this same channel.

Maude (Brannen) Edge and I were the only representatives of the class present. We had a joyful reunion, our first meeting since graduation, and we exchanged family histories. Maude has led a busy and happy life, the wife of a Presbyterian minister with charges in Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey. After his death, when her twin boys were still quite small, Maude brought up and educated her family of four girls and three boys, attending Johns Hopkins University herself during the time where she studied for her Master's degree. She has ten grandchildren. Maude is living in Statesboro again, in the old family home, busy with her scattered family, church and civic work. One of her sons, since his return from the army, has been studying at Peabody. Maude's three sons and one of her daughters were in the army.

Since 1943, I reported, I have been living in Macon again with my brother and my sisters, in the midst of a family of nieces and nephews and great-nieces and nephews. My two daughters were already established in the East, where they had lived all their lives, Louise Brenner in East Orange, N. J., with her husband and two boys, and Sarah Hall Hazard teaching Public School Music and later marrying Philip Babcock of White Plains, N. Y., where she is living now and still carrying on her teaching. Louise and her boys are annual summer visitors to me.

Pearle (Coleman) Sloane wrote from Washington in characteristic vein, "Believe it or not, I have a job as editor in the Navy Department!" When the war began and there was an urgent need for civilian war service workers, Pearle volunteered. Her two children were grown and her husband's business took him away from home a good deal, and Pearle had the time to give to her own interests. She liked the work so much that she is continuing it. We would like a little more information about those children, Pearle.

Pearle wrote about May (Moore) Darby, her cousin and inseparable companion at college. May has been ill in a sanitarium for several years, but Pearle writes that she is better. Pearle goes to all the alumnae meetings, and luncheons in Washington, and often sees Mae Wilder and Effie (Landrum) Skelton.

Mary (McAndrew) Thompson wrote regretfully from Montgomery, "It is impossible to leave home right at this time. My son and his wife are leaving for California on the 28th to be gone a month, and I have offered to care for their children, one less than a year old and the other four and a half. Am I very brave or very foolish?" Mary is fortunate in having her two children live near her, her son in the immediate neighborhood and her daughter next door to her.

Mary (Park) Polhill wrote from LaGrange, "It seems that with 'nary' a child nor a grandchild I should be foot-loose and free to come at a minute's notice, but somehow I have never found it quite so easy as that." Mary did plan tentatively to come, however, until the last minute when an invasion of painters and house decorators made her presence at home imperative. Mary has been in close touch with the Alumnae Office and with the college all these years, having served the college as Alumnae Trustee, and has helped the Alumnae Office by sending out the Loyalty Fund appeals to our class.

Mary (Poage) Smith wrote from Tampa, Fla., that because of the distance from Tampa to Macon and of her engagements already made for that week, it would not be possible for her to come. She had tried to learn if Mary (Lovejoy) Bothwell, with whom she is in close touch, would be here, but had not heard, as Mary is very busy taking care of an ill niece, one of her many missions of loving kindness. Through Mary, May hears of Claudia Clark, but she did not give any news of her. May herself has a son and a daughter, the daughter "still at home and spoiling her mother terribly." Her son has three sons, thirteen, eight, and four. He was overseas in the army for seventeen months, but is now at home in Tampa.

Dorothy (Rogers) Tillery, who has an important place in the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church, was out of the state at that time on one of her many trips for the Church. In her capacity as Secretary of Christian Social Relations, she is a frequent visitor and listener in the legislative halls of the state capitol, and often attends labor and management conferences and other social welfare meetings.

A letter to Fannie (Longino) Parker was returned from Luthersville, Ga., marked "Moved, address unknown." Maude says Fannie leads an interesting life, travelling with her husband. She heard of her two years ago on the Pacific Coast. If you see this, Fannie, write us about what you are seeing and doing.

Five of our number have died, Lula Aymand, Eltrym Killebrew, Sarah Helen (Land) Crittenden, Mattie (Harper) Mayfield, Paula (Williford) Colson.

We have no address for Emma Gary Lee. Can some one supply it?

Only three more years before our Fiftieth Anniversary! Everybody begin to plan for it.

Faithfully your classmate,
Margaret (Hall) Hazard

Gladys (Parker) McCoy writes from Shanghai, China: "It was with much interest that I read in the Wesleyan Alumnae magazine of the ten Chinese students at the college and of the meeting of Wesleyan alumnae and faculty at McTyeire, because I am now living in Shanghai and would like to know these students and their parents. I came out early this winter with my son, Francis T. McCoy, who is American Vice-Consul, stationed here. We have no home as yet and are temporarily at the Metropole Hotel, but I can always be reached through my son who is in the Visa Section at the Consulate General. It is he who sees all students who want to study in the States."

1904

Sympathy is extended to Almena (Coleman) Pierson in the death of her husband, Mr. Charles F. Pierson, merchant and prominent business man of Tallahassee, Fla., in April.

Eliza (Hill) Martin of Conyers, who was alumnae chairman of the Second Century Fund there, writes: "It has been a joy to have a part in doing something for dear old Wesleyan. One of the contributors, Mr. W. T. Martin, bank president, is a member of the Baptist Church, and has a granddaughter, Anne Purvis, at Wesleyan and five other granddaughters who are prospective Wesleyannes."

1911

Marie (Adams) Timmerman's husband, J. Warren Timmerman, has received special recognition from the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York for 20 years of service with that firm. He is recognized as a civic and religious leader in Macon.

A picture of Kathleen (Harper) Jaques in the beautiful garden of her estate, Jaquesland, and an article describing her garden appeared in the Macon Telegraph last Spring. Kathleen's collection of hemerocallis has attracted considerable attention and she is always sure to win prizes when her flowers are exhibited at local shows.

Annie (Gantt) Anderson attended the Alpha Delta Pi national convention in Spring Lake, N. J., and extended the sorority an invitation to hold the centennial celebration of its founding at Wesleyan in 1951.

Irma (Moore) Knox's son, Gordon, Jr., was recently elected secretary of the Bar Association of the Brunswick Judicial Circuit.

Florence Smith was recently invited to join the Delta Kappa Gamma Society for Women Educators. She has had considerable success in her career as a music teacher, having taught at Millsaps College in Jackson, Miss., for the past three years. Florence is studying again this summer at the Julliard School of Music.

Alberto (Denton) Marshall won second place in the song-writing contest in the Georgia Federation of Music Clubs in April for her composition, "The Sea," with lyrics by the well known Georgia poet, Daniel Whitehead Hickey. Alberto says: "On my card of credentials enclosed with my composition to the state chairman of composers the first qualification I listed was 'Degree graduate of Wesleyan Conservatory of Music.' You may know how proud I was to write those words."

1917

Edith (Culpepper) Turpin, her husband, William C. Turpin, and their daughter, Edith, flew to Europe this summer for a continental tour. In England they visited their son, Billy, who is a Rhodes scholar at Oxford University.

Helen (Reynolds) Mudd is a teacher of Dalcroze Eurythmics in Sebring, Fla., and Vail (Jones) Weems writes that they have enjoyed being together several times recently.

Marguerite (Adams) Hackworth lives in Nashville, Tenn., where her husband is president of the N. C. and St. L. Railroad. She says, "We have no children, no pets, and I have no accomplishments, but I enjoy life."

Mattie (Armor) Hale of College Park has been teaching in the Fulton County Schools since her husband's death, and was unable to come to reunion because of the duties of school closing. Her oldest daughters, Mary Armor, who attended Wesleyan, and Ann, who went to LaGrange and Birmingham-Southern, are married, and Mary Armor has an eight-months-old daughter. Lee, Mattie's third daughter, is a sophomore in College Park High School.

Grace (Beatty) Furlow of Madison was unable to be present for reunion because of the serious illness of her mother.

Cynthia Blake, 2826 Central Ave., Tampa, Fla., takes an active part in church work. Her twin brother is a member of the Florida Conference of the Methodist Church, and is District Superintendent of the Tallahassee District. He has a daughter, Julia, who is studying at Agnes Scott where her mother was a teacher, and a son, Withers, Jr., at F.S.U. Another brother, Donald, teaches in the Ringling School of Art in Sarasota.

Hilda (Blount) Brantley writes: "I have been teaching in Robert E. Lee High School in Jacksonville for the past 12 years. Our eighteen-year-old son has just finished his freshman year at Emory, studying to be a medical missionary. You will be interested in hearing that Naomi (Diggs) Paschal went to Korea after the death of her husband two years ago to do educational work. We thoroughly enjoyed the Wesleyan Glee Club when it was here. Our Wesleyan club here meets soon at the home of Mattie Beulah (McMath) White."

Julia (Cade) Abney lives in Anderson, S. C., in the winter, and in Flat Rock, N. C., in the summer. She writes that she has a very nice husband and two children, a boy and a girl. There are a number of Wesleyannes in Anderson, and Julia tells of a meeting at the home of Tommie Lou (Hightower) Craft in May.

Irma (Clark) Newton, whose husband is a doctor in Macon, has one son finishing his junior year at medical school, and another finishing high school.

Genie Fincher of Atlanta wrote to express her regret at not being able to attend the class reunion and tea.

Classmates of Sarah (Fountain) Jackson were grieved to hear of her death on March 25 at her home in Clio, Alabama. Sarah, daughter of Mrs. Allen T. Fountain, Sr., and the late Mr. Fountain of Hawkinsville, was a gifted musician and taught piano in the schools of Alabama before her marriage to Mr. James S. Jackson. She was a prominent member of the Clio Methodist Church and active in every affair pertaining to the welfare and betterment of her community. Their two children, J. S. Jackson, Jr., and a daughter, Jane, survive.

Inez (Ellington) Greene was attending the graduation of her son at Western Military Academy and could not get to Wesleyan for her reunion.

Vail (Jones) Weems and her husband went to the Rotary convention in Rio de Janeiro in May, and took a Post-Convention Tour around South America, returning the latter part of June. Vail's sister, Sarah (Jones) Pollock, and her husband also took the trip. Vail's daughter, Verna Vail, who received her M.A. degree in education at Smith, has been teaching English in Charlotte, N. C. Country Day School. The only son, Howard, Jr., is on the last part of his M.A. in entomology at the University of Florida, and Carolyn is the youngest child. Vail writes that this spring Marian (Cook) Murphy and her husband of Rockville Centre, N. Y., Sara (Pearce) Gibbs, her husband and two daughters and one grandson of Salem, Ohio, and Annie (Bishop) Butts of Bartow, Fla., have been to see her.

Ruth (Pike) Key wrote: "How like you, Linda to be inviting each member to a tea at your house. It just wouldn't be Commencement without the gracious hospitality that is so much a part of you and your family. My son and his Wesleyan wife, Martha (Tigner) Key, '48, live in Atlanta, and she and I will both be in Macon for Commencement—she is in the candle-lighting ceremony. When my husband and I moved to New York more than two years ago, we kept our house in Atlanta and perhaps come back more often than we should, but it's heaven to be in Georgia. I recently saw a number of Wesleyan 'girls' at a luncheon in New York, among them Marian (Cook) Murphy. I know you are all happy that she is coming to the reunion."

Lois (Linder) Fleming and her husband operate the Belmont Hotel in Abbeville, S. C. They have one son, Charles Linder Fleming, a student at Clemson College.

Sympathy is extended to Sara (Singleton) King, whose mother, Mrs. Robert L. Singleton, died in May. Sara and her mother had never been separated more than a few weeks at a time and their devotion was often remarked upon. Mrs. Singleton was an active member of the First Methodist Church of Waycross, the Woman's Club and the King's Daughters. Her kindness of heart and generous nature brought her a wide circle of friends and her Christian character was demonstrated in her daily living.

Sue (Tanner) McKenzie could not be with the class for reunion because her young daughter, Susan Ann, was in a recital about that time. Sue's son, Harold, Jr., is in high school.

Linda (Anderson) Lane's son, Billy, graduated with highest honors at the University of North Carolina in June, the first student majoring in English literature ever gaining the top place there. He has been awarded a fellowship in the graduate school of Princeton University and will continue work on his master's degree. Tapped by Phi Beta Kappa in his senior year at North Carolina, Billy won the Albert Richmond Bond award given by the English department to its outstanding student. During the war, he served overseas with the counter intelligence service of the American forces, having previously been assigned to the study of the Japanese language at the University of Chicago, following his basic training.

Sarah (Bryan) Grubbs was unable to attend. She wrote: "I have never forgotten the friends I had at dear old Wesleyan. Of course you know that I am very sad and lonely without my husband. I am working in his office—as you know I had never worked a day in my life before, but I have learned a little and it has helped to keep my mind occupied."

Lucile Fincher lives with her invalid mother at her home in Canton. Her niece, Betty Rose Fambro, attends Wesleyan Conservatory. Lucile writes that she is looking forward to seeing Mamie Lou (Thomas) Tippet when she comes from her home in Cuba for a Georgia visit this summer. Mamie Lou's son is a student at Tech.

Marie (Griswold) Whaler sent her regrets at being unable to attend Linda's tea and the other Commencement affairs. She wrote: "My mother, Harriott (Freeman) Griswold, '80, is an invalid and continues seriously ill. Both she and I were very much interested in the tea and our discussion on the subject formed a cheerful spot in my visits to her while she was in the hospital. She is back at home now and we pass all the Wesleyan and Macon news on to her for she has never lost interest in her college or the old home town."

Clara (Carter) Acree sent her regrets that she could not join her classmates for their reunion.

Rosaline (Jenkins) Gilmore's address is now 582 Clifton Rd. N.E., since "Gilly" was made Executive Secretary of the Methodist Board of Education of the North Georgia Conference in July. Rosaline writes that she hates to leave many good friends in Thomaston, where he has served as pastor for six years, but looks forward to seeing many Wesleyan friends in Atlanta.

Edith (Johnson) Griffin, Mary (Jones) Broyles and Irene (Brinson) Munro sent their regrets at not getting back for their reunion. Irene teaches at Huntingdon College and she, her husband, and their 12-year-old son spend their summers at Cape Cod. Commencement found her too busy winding up her year's work and packing to get away even for a week-end.

Josebel (Johnson) Miller, prevented from attending her class reunion by her husband's illness, wrote from her home in Hickory, N. C.: "It would be such a pleasure to be at Commencement and I send my best wishes to the gals of '19. When I attended a reunion about 10 or 12 years ago I was impressed with how much the members of our class had improved. Age does seem to enrich one if it is accepted gracefully. My life has been rather uneventful—I do all the usual things, some civic and church work. Although I have no children, we have my 13-year-old nephew who lost his mother when he was only three. He seems like our very own. Mamie (Marchman) Griffin lives in Hickory and she and I get together whenever Julia (Mobley) Dixon visits her." Sympathy is extended to Josebel in the death of her husband.

Martha Kelley of Reidsville sent a message to the class from her home in Reidsville, where she lives with her sister, Ruth, A.B. '24. Ruth's health has kept her a shut-in for many years, and Martha is her devoted nurse and companion.

Anabel (Moye) Fleming writes from Sanford, Fla., to her classmates:

"I had hoped to see you this week, but find that I cannot make it. I am a school teacher and we are in the closing week. My husband is connected with the State Banking Department as chief state examiner. He was in the army for three years, and spent over two years overseas. My son, after two years in the navy, is now finishing his college work at the University of Florida. He has made a splendid record in scholarship and athletics, and more than anything else is a sweet and fine son. My mother and father, the latter an invalid, moved to Sanford about a year ago, and I am happy to have them near me.

Claire Ray has been working for Civil Service for almost 10 years, the last five of which she has been instructor in the Airplane and Engine Mechanics School at Keesler Field, Miss. She wrote: "I regret not being able to be with my classmates. Please tell them that if any of their nephews, sons or friends come to this school to have them look me up and I shall take pride in helping them. My nephew, Ray Brewster of Cedartown will graduate from Mercer next year."

Mary Marvin (James) Twitty's husband is not well and she did not feel that she could leave him. She wrote: "I'll be thinking of you and the wonderful time you are all having together."

Sympathy is extended to Kathleen (Rogers) Pape in the death of her husband, Mr. Harry E. Pape, on May 16 at the U. S. Naval Hospital in Dublin. Mr. Pape who was an Army captain in World War I, was for many years probation officer of Bibb County. He was head of the Young People's department at Mulberry Street Methodist Church, a Mason, and a member of the Civitan Club in which he served two terms as state governor. Other survivors include three daughters: Kathleen Ann, a student at Wesleyan Conservatory, Louise and Harriet Beall.

Louise (Saville) McPherson wrote: "I know of nothing that I would enjoy more than attending the Alumnae Tea at Linda's and seeing so many of the girls and talking over the good times we experienced together, but it is impossible for me to attend." Louise has four children: Louise, who was married last November; Miles, Jr., who was with the Army during the war, serving two years in the Panama Canal Zone; Lucius Goode who was a sergeant with the Weather Bureau at Langley Field, Va.; Saville, who graduated from Richland High School in 1947, receiving the Danforth Award and the American Legion Award as the most outstanding boy of the class.

Paula Snelling wired from Clayton, Ga.: "Had hoped to join you today, but cannot. Warmest greetings to all."

Augusta (Streyer) Miller of Atlanta had planned to be at the tea at Linda's on Saturday, but at the last minute her family went to the beach for the week-end. "Ordinarily I'm thrilled, but just at this time I want to come to Macon so much I'm almost sorry for myself."

Mary Pope (Watson) Turk wrote: "It hurts to miss seeing those of you who are fortunate enough to get back to Wesleyan for a few hours together. I am more or less a victim of circumstances and can't be with you. I teach school, and floods, sleet and ice during the winter closed us up for a week and we are now making up that time. Here's hoping each of you has a grand time, one long to be remembered. I am finishing my fourteenth year teaching in the same school here in Rome. Recently I was given a surprise tea, "Turk Day" the press and radio called the occasion. Former pupils who had been notified of the day sent telegrams and other messages, gifts of china in my favorite pattern; a lovely pin came from my present and former pupils, and the faculty sent an orchid. I haven't decided yet what it is all about—whether they foretell my early demise, or that I am on the verge of getting fired! In either case, the Class of '19 will be notified. My husband is to be sales representative for a Philadelphia manufacturer and I shall spend most of the summer traveling with him in Georgia, Alabama and Florida. Our only child, six feet tall and a handsome blonde, is a senior at Mercer University."

Mary (Atkinson) Whitesell and Lois (Ragsdale) Sherrill sent their joint regrets at having to miss Commencement. They live just a block apart in Columbia, S. C., where Mary's husband teaches in the Chemistry department at the University of South Carolina and Lois' husband teaches political science. Mary has four children: Billy who made Phi Beta Kappa at the University before he graduated in June; Mary Louise, on the dean's list at Winthrop College; 12-year-old Margaret, a junior high school miss; Frank, seven, who collects "everything, especially money and things that are alive." His two bullfrog tadpoles turned into bullfrogs and as he can't bear to return them to their native element, Mary writes that they are now on the highest cabinet in the kitchen out of the cat's reach and she is hoping they won't jump on her! Both Mary and Lois sent congratulations to Gladys (Butner) Jennings, whose daughter, Doranne, won second place in the Wesleyan competitive scholarship examinations last spring.

Sarah (Wright) Cason taught music and first grade after leaving Wesleyan, until her marriage in 1924 to a salesman in Clinton, S. C. They have a son, Bobby, who is a sophomore in high school, and a daughter, Roslyn, now Alumni Secretary at Presbyterian College in Clinton.

Nell (Bates) Penland writes a regular column for the Atlanta Constitution and has recently sold material to Collier's, American Home and the Journal of Living. She was unable to attend her reunion, having invited a group of her son's Kappa Alpha brothers down from Emory University that week-end.

Elizabeth (Baugh) Glaze sent her regrets at being unable to attend her reunion—her children are all in different schools and she was tied up with getting to Brenau Academy to pick up her 15-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, and going on from there to see her youngest son, Richard, graduate from the Webb School in Bell Buckle, Tenn., and arriving back home as two other sons got home, Joe from Duke and Hal from Florida State University. Johnny, the eldest son, a pre-med student at Duke, is to marry a New York girl in August.

Rebecca (Caudill) Ayers, Hattie Tracy (King) Hartness, Sue Ellen (Morton) Boyette and Beulah (Smith) Jelks also sent their greetings and regrets that they could not join their classmates. Incidentally Sue Ellen's son, Morton, was seventh grade first honor student in Gray during the past year.

Susie (Fountain) Woods' daughter, Margaret, who graduated from Wesleyan last year, is working for her Master's Degree at the University of Georgia.

Lois (McMath) Mathis' son, Evan, Jr., graduated from the Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1948 and is now based at Pearl Harbor, her daughter, Lois, is president of the sophomore class at Wesleyan; and Lane, the baby girl, is six years old and in the First Grade. Lois' husband is president of the Citizens Bank of Americus.

Mary (Melson) Butler's grandson, Earl Willis Butler III, born April 7, is the attraction that keeps her going to Atlanta every chance she gets. Mary's two youngest sons are still in school—Melson is an honor student at Mercer University where he is a junior, majoring in Business Administration and a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity; Walter will enter Lanier High School for Boys in September. Mary and her husband sold their large house on College Street in Macon and moved to the Nevarro Apartments about two years ago. She is an active member of the Mulberry Street Methodist Church and has done considerable P.-T.A. work since her boys started going to school.

Fay (Mundy) Durham has four children and a grandchild. Her sons are married and her daughters, 19 and 13 are both musicians. Jeannene is attending Salem College.

Louise (Phillips) Hogrefe sent greetings from her home in Calexico, California. "My husband is in the cotton gin and oil business in Mexico so we spend much time there. We have been living in California nine years and are almost as bad as the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce when it comes to bragging about the weather. Last summer I spent a short time in Macon with my uncle, Mr. V. R. Patrick, at the Massee. My last direct contact with any of my Wesleyan friends was when Rosaline (Jenkins) Gilmore, Edwina (Short) Ellzey and I lived near one another in Mississippi several years ago."

Gladys (Holtzendorf) Schulte wrote: "It is with great regret that I am not able to be at Wesleyan for Commencement. Although I was at the college for only one year that year has been a joy to have in my memory book. The friendship of the girls has been most treasured—there is always a warm feeling when one meets a Wesleyan girl. I do hope that I'll be able to be at the next reunion."

Alyce (Shipley) Winter writes from her home in Moncks Corner, S. C.: "How I would enjoy being with my classmates at our reunion! Our only child, Joan, graduates from Prep School during Wesleyan's Commencement week so I cannot be with you. I think that any girl who attended Wesleyan goes through life much happier as the experiences there teach her poise and give her a sense of security." Alyce's husband is a lawyer and she has been working in his office for many years.

Vivian Smith who is in the order division of the University of Georgia library wrote Linda: "Thirty years ago (can that be true?) I was a guest in your home when you gave a beautiful tea. How I regret that my work makes it impossible for me to enjoy a repetition of such a pleasant occasion."

Willie (Snow) Ethridge's son, Mark, was married to Margaret Burns Furbee of Fairmont, W. Va., at Christ Episcopal Church there on the evening of April 24. Mark, Sr., was their son's best man; their daughters, Georgia and Mary Snow were attendants, and Willie and her mother, Mrs. W. A. Snow of Macon, were among the most important guests at the wedding. Willie visited Wesleyan earlier in the year, but was unable to get back to her class reunion. She wrote: "It all sounds so wonderful—I do wish I could be with you this week-end, but sad to relate, I can't."

Frances (Solomon) Baskin's son, Billy, is spending the summer in France as a student at the Alliance Francaise. He is majoring in French at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The marriage of Hazel (Stokes) Thompson's daughter, Claire, to Lige Moultrie DuBose was held at the Thompson home in Macon on June 5, followed by a reception. Hazel's younger daughter, Virginia, was the bride's only attendant, and Janie Lee (Gardner) Ware, '22, played the wedding music.

Sympathy is extended to Grace (Bush) Dancer whose husband, Mr. W. R. Dancer, died of a heart attack at their home in Colquitt on April 5. Their only daughter, Alice Jane is a senior at the University of Georgia.

Fannie (Cantey) Duggan and her family have lived in Washington, D. C., for 14 years. Her daughter, Mary, finished last June at Vanderbilt and is a chemist working in Corvallis, Oregon. Her sixteen-year-old son is at Riverside Academy in Gainesville. Fannie is chairman of local church activities in the WSCS in Metropolitan Methodist Church in Washington.

Helen (Cox) Inghram unable to attend her reunion wrote: "If only I could bring my family for I haven't forgotten my good old Wesleyan Days. Howell, my husband, is at Columbia University, and our daughter, Mary Elizabeth, will arrive on the Mauretania on August 11 from Exeter, England, where she has had her junior college year and will be a senior at Wellesley next year."

Hovie (Ellis) Schofield's son, Lt. Claude Shelverton, is stationed with the Army Corps in Germany. Mrs. Shelverton and little Claude spent several months in Macon with Hovie before flying over this summer to join him. Baby Claude celebrated his first birthday at his grandmother's home.

Eulalia (Fagan) Hickson's husband is superintendent of Houston County Schools. Their daughter, Catherine, lives in Unadilla, and their son, Seabie, Jr., attended the Methodist Youth Assembly at Wesleyan in June.

Sara (Herndon) Arthur writes from Bridgeton, N. J.: "The main reason for my not being with you for reunion is that my only child, a daughter, Marjorie, graduates from high school in June. She has been editor-in-chief of the high school annual. She and a friend wrote the class song, and Marjorie composed the music. She was crowned "Miss Bridgeton High School" by popular vote, and was elected to Who's Who among Students in American High Schools. We have lived in Bridgeton for nine years, my husband being vice-president and sales manager of a lithographing plant, Price Brothers Label Company. For the past several years I have been doing substitute teaching in the high school. During the summer we are going to Georgia and I plan to bring Marjorie to see Wesleyan, for she never has."

Janie (Johnson) Banks was unable to return for her class reunion as she and her husband were leaving at that time for Charlottesville, Va., where their son, Donald, Jr., was a member of the University of Virginia graduating class. Janie's daughter, Mary Ellen, is living in Chicago while her husband is studying at the University there.

Margaret (Jones) Roddenberry's son, Julian, Jr., and her son, Ralph, have completed their post graduate work in science since returning from overseas duty in '46. They are at home in Cairo, Ga., now, learning various phases of the family business. Rebecca, 19, completed her sophomore year at Wesleyan. Another son, Albert, 16, is in a boys' school in Pennsylvania, and Martha, 13, is at home with her parents. Margaret writes that she enjoyed working recently in the Wesleyan Second Century Fund campaign.

Eunice (Lightfoot) Brown writes from her home in Dublin: "Thank you for the wonderful hospitality I enjoyed during our class reunion and on Alumnae Day. Everything was beautifully planned, the food was delicious and our welcome was so genuine. Wesleyan's campus at Rivoli is so beautiful; Wesleyan Conservatory, 'tho, has so many happy memories and the dignity and atmosphere of the 'Oldest and Best'."

Maggie (Perry) Ammons lives in Tampa, and has a daughter, Margie, at the University of Georgia, and a son, Phil, Jr., who is at Emory Academy summer session this year. Maggie writes, "I devour the Wesleyan magazine with interest and pride."

Clyde Smith is librarian at the Olivia Raney Library in Raleigh, N. C., which, she says, reminds her of Macon. She writes that she hates to miss the tea for 1918, '19, '20, and '21 at Linda's.

Sympathy is extended to Lora (Waterman) Burke in the death of her father, Mr. Frank B. Waterman on May 5. Mr. Waterman had lived in Macon for 21 years where he was a member and steward of the Mulberry Street Methodist Church, and for many years superintendent of the adult department of the Sunday School. His friends and neighbors loved him for his genial, kindly manner. In Hawkinsville, his former home, he was active in civic affairs, being a charter member and first president of the Kiwanis Club there.

Mabel (Woodard) Douglas wired: "Greetings to Class of 1921 and all reunion classes. Best wishes for the years ahead."

Bruce (Cleckler) Flanders has been teaching in the schools in Sebring, having been pressed into service last fall when one of the teachers was injured in an automobile accident, and has done an excellent job. Her daughters, "Bootsie" and Jean studied at F.S.C.W., Bootsie graduating this year, and Jean a junior next year.

Gladys (Dukes) McMillan's only daughter, Harriet, was married to Trammell Starr, Jr., of Dalton at the Sanders-ville Methodist Church on June 28.

Louise (Walters) Johnston is a proud grandmother, her little granddaughter, Bonnie, having arrived on June 1. Bonnie's mother, Mrs. J. H. Patrick of Marietta, is Louise's daughter. Louise and her husband, the Rev. H. J. Johnston, live in Alma.

1924

Ruth Kelley and her sister Martha, '19, sent their usual generous cheek to Wesleyan with their good wishes for the campaign. Ruth, who is an invalid, has had an unusually hard spring, but is feeling much better now.

Willie (Fincher) Hendon's husband is chief Airport Engineer, Civil Aeronautics Administration, New York Region. It is interesting work, and Willie has enjoyed many trips with him, as he is on all the airports in thirteen states from Maine to North Carolina. Their only son, James William, was killed over Belgium on his 26th mission to Germany with the 8th Air Force on March 1, 1945. He had had two years of college and was planning to be a surgeon. Their daughter, Helen, served with the SPARS, and was stationed near Seattle most of the war. She is now at Emory University, and is in training as a nurse, working on her B.S. degree. Willie's niece (the daughter of her sister, Jeffie of the class of '25) Betty Rose Fambro, is a student at Wesleyan Conservatory.

Elizabeth (Thwaite) Jones has been appointed principal of the Virgil Powers Grammar School in Macon. This promotion climaxes 15 years successful teaching in the Bibb County Schools, the last of which were spent teaching English at Lanier High School for Boys. Elizabeth has two sons: Frank Thwaite Jones, who attended Mercer University, and Edward, who is a student at Lanier High.

Martha Few is recuperating after a serious appendix operation in July. Martha's mother, who was ill for several months this year, is regaining her strength.

Sympathy is extended to Autrey Lewis and her sister, Gladys (Lewis) McElveen, '27, whose father, Dr. J. H. Lewis, retired Dawson physician, died in June. This is their second bereavement within the year; the death of their sister, Lucile Lewis, '21, on January 14, brought sadness to all who knew her. Dr. Lewis attended Emory University and in 1893 received his M.D. degree from the Atlanta Medical College. Later he took post graduate courses at the New York Polytechnic College and at Tulane University.

Eunice Thomson's father, the Rev. T. H. Thomson, secretary of the South

Georgia Methodist Conference, is now serving his ninth year as pastor of the Reidsville Methodist Church, the longest pastorate in the conference. His fifty-three years active service in the ministry represent the longest record in the conference of any man now in the conference.

Although it was not our reunion year, the Class of '26 was invited to share reunion joys at Commencement because our classmate, Kwe Yuin Kiang, was speaker at Alumnae Day exercises in the chapel. Those of us who participated in the various affairs were thrilled to see Kwe Yuin again, and glowed with pride at the splendid speech she made. We were thrilled, too, to see Miss Mary Culler White, who sat with our class table Sunday night at supper at Rivoli, and who claimed to be a '26 girl by virtue of having studied journalism under Miss Garner along with some of us. Katherine (Clarke) Lowe, Kwe Yuin's roommate, was back, as were ReLee (Mallory) Brown, Emily (Brown) Edwards, Almarita (Booth) Johnston, Frances (Cater) Snow, Edna (Mahone) Parker, Freda (Kaplan) Nadler, and Margaret (Zattan) Roan.

After the Alumnae Luncheon on Saturday, Freda had a Coca-Cola party at her home on Wesleyan Drive, Rivoli, in honor of Kwe Yuin. The girls plied her with questions, and it was hard to believe that the slim, attractive little figure in her plum satin Chinese dress could be the principal of a big normal school, with many teachers under her direction.

Kwe Yuin sent Freda a handkerchief from China and a lovely note, which read in part: "I had a wonderful time in Macon. I was so glad to have seen the beautiful new campus. The renewed contacts with my Alma Mater and my classmates have meant so much to me. I enjoyed tremendously my visit in your most lovely home. My only regret is that I did not get to meet your husband. But I do hope you two will come to China some day for a visit. There is a very warm welcome waiting for you always from me."

At the reunion Freda was elected Secretary of the Class of '26, and asks that you send all news to her at 139 Wesleyan Drive.

Mrs. Robert Corley (Malda Roberts) claims the distinction of being the first grandmother in our class. Her daughter Eugenia, (Mrs. Elmo Simmons, Jr.), who graduated from Wesleyan in '47, became the proud mother of a son on May 12, named John Elmo. Does anybody challenge Malda's record?

Emily (Brown) Edwards reports that her daughter has been elected president of this year's Senior Class at Wesleyan.

Isabella Harris received the Ph.D. degree from Duke University in June. Dr. Harris (somehow that seems to fit Isabella) is a member of Phi Beta Kappa honor society (which also fits!).

Marion (Moore) Lasseter and her husband, H. S. Lasseter, principal of Miller High School for Girls, Macon, are justly proud of their twin sons. At Lanier High's Annual School Night, young Joe was presented the student activities plaque, a new award, to be given annually to the youth who contributes most to student life. Twin Jack, president of the senior class, received an award for his "outstanding leadership, loyalty, and spirit of cooperation."

Charlotte (Emerson) Walton and her husband have returned from Germany, where he was a prosecutor in the war crimes trials.

Sympathy is extended to Roberta (Howard) Rumble in the death of her father in May. Roberta lives in Pasadena, Calif., and has two children, Anne and Robert Parks.

Mary Lee (Hutchinson) Worth and her daughter live at 111 N. Commerce St., Sebring, Fla. Mary Ell's husband died suddenly last fall, and she is teaching in the Sebring schools. Vail (Jones) Weems, who was local chairman for the Second Century Fund, writes that she is a refreshing and charming person.

Sara Jenkins' novel, "We Gather Together," which will be released by the publishers, Thomas Y. Crowell, on August 23, is a warm and appealing story of the large Gordon family and promises to be one of those books that can't be put down until the last page. Another writer who has read the book says: "As a Southerner away from her native milieu almost ten years, I felt my memory stir and my heart grow homesick over Sara Jenkins' deft sketching of scenes, sounds, and even smells which I recognized clearly on every page." . . . More space will be devoted to Sara's book in the November Wesleyan Alumnae.

Annie (Shapiro) Goldgar's son, Harry, former English instructor at Vanderbilt University, has been awarded the degree of Docteur de l'Universite with honorable mention at the University of Paris. He plans to remain for awhile in Paris where he is with the firm of Georges Heilbrun, dealers in rare books and manuscripts.

Louise (Campbell) Timmons' husband is studying dentistry. They have two children and are living at 1566 Sudbury Court, Willow Village, Ypsilanti, Michigan.

The death of Gertrude (Sloat) Jachens occurred last year, the sad message of her death having come from her husband,

Mr. F. H. Jachens of Savannah.

Dr. Shannon Mays, brother of Annie (Mays) Larmore, '28, and Rachel (Mays) Dempsey, '31, has been awarded the Legion of Merit for "Exemplary and meritorious service and keen judgment in line of duty." Dr. Mays served during the recent war in the China-Burma-India Theatre, attaining the rank of lieutenant colonel. He was sent overseas during the war as consultant in neuropsychiatry and visited every United States Army Hospital in China, Burma and India. At present he is engaged in private practice as a psychiatrist in Macon and last June was appointed as a consultant to the Secretary of War as a part of the Army Medical Corps' peace time program.

Congratulations to Elmyr (Park) Currie on the birth of a little daughter on June 1 who has been named Caroline. Elmyr's husband, Mr. Brainerd Currie, is professor of law at Duke University and editor of the law magazine there.

Aldine E. Cone who attained the rank of captain as an Army nurse has been relieved from active duty and is living in Statesboro, Georgia.

Dorothy (Rountree) Budd has two children, Warren, 6, and Lillian, 3. Little Lillian is named for Lillian (Budd) Jackson, '24. Dorothy's husband has been pastor of Hapeville Methodist Church for the past four years.

1931

The beautiful young gardener whose picture adorned the cover of the Atlanta Journal magazine one Sunday last spring is none other than Martha Burts, attractive daughter of Kathleen (Bailey) Burts. Martha, who graduated from Washington Seminary in May, is almost as good-looking as her mother!

1932

Vida (Barnett) Early was president of the class of 1932 their sophomore year. A letter from Roberta (Cason) Cox of Arlington, Virginia, in June said: "I have been wondering if it would be possible for the contributions of our class to the Second Century Fund to form a memorial to Vida. I think it would be most appropriate for us to contribute to that worthwhile effort in memory of our one-time leader whose vital personality made her very much loved by her classmates."

Of course, it is entirely proper for the class of 1932 to make their pledges to the Second Century Fund in memory of this former class president. The record of this memorial will be kept on the permanent records of the college forever, and the Alumnae Magazine will carry the list of contributors and the total of the class gift.

Dorothy (Armstrong) Robuck's little daughter, Katherine Armstrong Robuck was born on June 2 in Jacksonville, Fla.

Yona (Bell) Lott and her husband attended the Rotary International Convention in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, in May, Sam going to represent the Americus chapter of which he is president.

Malene (Lee) Morgan was director of a most successful meeting of "Girls' State" held on the Wesleyan campus in July, and won much praise for her efficient planning for this week of fun and education for nearly a hundred high school girls.

Evelyn (Merritt) McDonald, her husband and children, Bucky, seven, and Ann, five, of New Orleans, La., visited her mother in Macon in June.

Frances (Justi) Best writes from La-Crosse, Virginia: "So many things happen in our parsonage life that cause me to send up silent prayers of thankfulness for Wesleyan. Paul and I have dedicated ourselves to rural work, and are now in our second year on a six-point charge. We have only 1,140 members! At times we feel 'snowed under,' but we are really enjoying this lovely section of Virginia. When we are in Atlanta this summer I plan to bring my two little Wesleyannes to visit Wesleyan. Frances is now eleven, and Sarah nearly nine. Paul, Jr., is two and a half.

1934

Congratulations to Penelope (Wall) Thomas on the birth of a son, Joe Hill Thomas III, on May 10. Penelope has two little daughters, Penny and Barbara.

1935

Charlotte (Joyner) Ainsworth has a little daughter, Christina Blanche, born March 6. Congratulations, Charlotte.

1936

Sympathy is extended to Frances (Cain) McNatt whose husband, Mr. P. Jiles McNatt, was killed on February 15 when the plane which he was piloting crashed into the Altamaha River several miles from Vidalia. His body was not recovered until a month later. Mr. McNatt, an active Alumnus of Emory University, was interested in aviation, real estate and farming and was prominently identified with the growth which his home town has made during recent years. Survivors include their children, Sue, Becky, and Dale.

1937

Congratulations to Betty (Alexander) Smith on the birth of a little son who has been named Willie H. Smith, Jr.

Ora (Hollis) Cheney has recently bought a home in Fitzgerald. Her little daughter is three years old.

Cecilia (Miller) Coleman, her husband and their little son, Jackie, who live in New Orleans, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Boyce Miller of Macon, in June. There was a charming picture of the three in a Sunday Macon Telegraph while they were here during their visit.

Billie Wilkinson writes: "The scarcity of news from my class in the May Wesleyan Alumnae reminds that I should have sent in these two items earlier! Helen (Ouzts) Dupree has a little girl, born February 16, named Helen Elizabeth. Katherine (Hall) Arnold has a little girl, Marian Katherine, born April 22."

Carolyn (McKenzie) Truesdel and her husband were photographed at the Ingle-side Community House in Macon as they helped themselves to barbecue at a country fair, the picture appearing in a Macon newspaper the next day.

Rae (Stubbs) Ingley, former member of the Wesleyan Conservatory faculty, received generous notices from the Rochester, N. Y., newspapers when she gave a recital there before receiving the Artist's diploma of the Eastman School of Music at the University of Rochester. Three songs by Elizabeth (Anderson) Rankin, '26, formed a part of Rae's program, and her accompanist was Zillah Halstead, also a former Conservatory teacher. Rae's husband, Howard Ingley, graduated in piano and composition at Wesleyan alumnae were surprised and delighted to hear the voices of two alumnae on the radio program "Break the Bank" on July 16, Frankie (Jones) Dusk and her mother, Genevieve (Broome) Jones, '23. Frankie was visiting her mother in Bogota, N. J., and they got tickets to hear the broadcast, and were chosen for a series of questions calling for identification of the books from which certain quotations were taken. They were prompt and keen in their answers, and Eastman in June.

Alberta Trulock is now head of the United Press Bureau in Knoxville, Tenn., one of the largest news bureaus in the South. Recently she was the subject of an interesting article written by Gertrude Smith, '35, for the Macon Telegraph in which were related several out-of-the-usual incidents in her career. Once when Secretary of State Marshall's plane was grounded in Knoxville and he was dining at a hotel there, Alberta approached him for an interview, whereupon he suggested that she dine with him. "While I was trying to get him to talk about the international situation, Mr. Marshall kept bringing the subject back to Macon and Wesleyan of which he said he had heard so much from Madame Chiang Kai-shek while he was in China."

Maryan (Smith) Harris wrote in sending her check for Wesleyan that she wished very much that she might be here for her class reunion. She lives in Bloomfield, N. J., at 664 E. Passiac Ave. She says that her sister, Dotte's two-year-old daughter, "Dee Dee" is adorable.

1940

Aileen (Brown) Stahler has a little daughter, Sally Brown Sahler, born December 14, 1947.

Dolores (Schatzman) Smith has a daughter, Carling Dolores, born June 29.

Jeanette (Harris) Morgan writes: "Yelia (Aiken) Tenney has a two and a half year old daughter, Leila Ann. She tells me that Helen (White) Lindell lives in Jacksonville and has two charming children, Lindy and Laura. Helen (Love-in) Jackson has a two-year-old daughter, Helen. Sara (Webb) Bryan is the wife of a Presbyterian minister and I heard they were living in New York. Betty (Bartlett) Radar's husband, Rex, led his class when he received his Master's degree at Massachusetts Institute of Technology last year. The Navy sent him to M.I.T. following his graduation from Annapolis. Betty has three children, Rex, Jr., Susan and Nancy.

"The last heard from Isabel Rutherford was that she was on her way to Japan. Lucy (Cline) Huie is doing social work in Jonesboro where she directs the county welfare office. She says she is developing a great respect for persons who calmly hold full time jobs and keep house, too.

"From Virginia Hatcher I hear that she and her husband plan to build a home in Charleston, Miss., this summer. She also tells me that Emily (Campbell) Brown, who is living in Mansfield, Ohio, has a son, Robert Clarke Brown, born December 17, 1947."

Ernestine (Gibson) Hinton has a son, Thomas Daniel, born June 22.

Margaret Johnson is camp director for the YWCA in Louisville, Ky. Her job includes 13 full weeks of camp in summer, working with conference groups and with young adult clubs. She writes: "Last year in search of a dietician and cooks, I appealed to Miss Rozar and as a result we have had Doris Thomason, assistant dietician at the Conservatory, and three Wesleyan cooks at our camp both last summer and this."

Mary (Thomas) Evans has a future Wesleyanne, 14-months-old Sarah Carolyn. Mary writes of having seen Lilly (Taylor) Boswell recently and that Lilly is busy getting her beautiful country home decorated. "The last I heard from Carolyn (Stapleton) Cannon was the announcement of the arrival of her third child, Raymonde, named for her father. Sara (Phillips) Inman has two daughters, Gin and Jean—I saw her last week on the way to a wedding in Suffolk, Va. It has been two years since I have seen Nancy (Harkness) Horton and her two darling boys, the older a red-head! Winnett (Turner) Holt lives in Jamaica, New York, and has a little son."

Estelle Brunila writes from San Pedro, California: "My family and I returned to California two years ago. I am working in the business office of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company here—interesting work, but a bit wearing when the party line complaints come rolling in! Give my best wishes to all the old girls—I always look forward to the Wesleyan Alumnae magazine because that is my one way of keeping up with news of my friends."

Margaret (Smith) Carruth has moved from Bloomingdale to Savannah where her husband, the Rev. E. H. Carruth, has been transferred as associate pastor of Wesley Monumental Church.

Mary (Sandefur) Brownlow and her minister husband of Chipley, Ga., have a son, Bruce Lee, born July 12.

Jane (Shearouse) Metts' husband is attending college in Cochran, and will complete his work there next June. Jane, meanwhile, is teaching in Dublin.

Ethelyn Lindsey is studying in Europe this summer, one of 300 teachers and graduate students who were accepted to study the Marshall Plan in an educational tour planned by the University of Vermont. Ethelyn, who sailed from Quebec, Canada, on July 2, will attend lectures at several European universities, and visit various industrial centers. The group will travel in England, France, Belgium and the Netherlands.

Virginia (McClellan) McCowen's little daughter, Murray Ann, was christened at Christ Church in Macon on May 15. Betty Allen was the baby's godmother.

Lilla (Thomason) Dalton lives at 129 Knollwood Lane, Greenville, S. C. She and Robert William Dalton were married nearly two years ago.

Mary Ellen Findlay played one of the leading roles in the Macon Little Theatre's production, "All My Sons," which was presented in May. She has a position in the commercial department of radio station WMAZ in Macon.

Helene (Jones) Schwartz and baby daughter, Helen Gail, of Oakmont, Penn., and Jane (Methvin) Jones, wife of Helene's brother, Tom Jones, Jr., and her little daughter, Dorothy Patricia, who live in Atlanta, visited Helene's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Jones, Sr., in Macon during Commencement week, and while the babies stayed at home with the grandparents, their mothers attended Wesleyan festivities.

Congratulations to Rebecca (Shipley) Street whose son was born March 4 and has been named Paul Shipley. Rebecca lives in Tulelake, Calif., Route I, Box 342.

Emily Bell of Mobile, Ala., launched a new radio series in July, reviewing activities of the Barter Theatre of Virginia. Emily is with the theatre this season studying the operation of the only state theatre in the nation with the idea of starting one in her own state. Emily was one of the founders of the Joe Jefferson Players, the little theatre group in Mobile.

A letter in June from Ted Dillard tells this sad news of Mary (Euyang) Loh, whose wedding in the Grand Parlor at Wesleyan in June, 1946, was a beautiful occasion: "Mary (Euyang) Loh of Shanghai, China, was in an automobile accident in which five were killed, including her husband, David. Mary and her mother were the only survivors, and though seriously injured both are improving rapidly. I am sending Mary's address so that her host of friends may write to her: Mrs. David Loh, 2 Ghisi Road, Shanghai, China."

Mae (Eason) Hall writes that she and her husband and their little nine-month-old daughter, Diana, have moved into their new home on Wells Drive in Columbus. "Recently our baby played with her future (maybe) roommate at Wesleyan, little M'Liss Romine, age six months. Her parents, Jeanne (Gray) Romine and 'Chuck' Romine, paid us a visit on their way home to Texas . . . It was such fun being in Laurel Dean's wedding and seeing all the Wesleyan folks again."

Julie (Ruth) Ray's son, William Hardwick Ray, was born April 23. Congratulations, Julie!

Ellen (Barber) Batson's little daughter arrived April 2 and has been named Sellen for her mother and her mother's cousin. Ellen writes of attending Harriett Weatherly's wedding on June 9. "I enjoyed seeing Betty Turner, Jane Wilson and Sally Bowen, who were bridesmaids."

Jeanette (Chichester) Adams has a son born on April 27 who has been named Ranauld Trevor II. Jeanette is living in Albany where her husband, Lieutenant Adams, is stationed at Turner Field. The baby's paternal grandmother is Mary (Nisbet) King, '22.

Doris Dickerson is on the staff of the Welfare Department in Lexington, Ga.

Jo Patterson is making her debut in a successful run of "The Voice of the Turtle" at the Barter Theatre.

Margaret (Smith) Mines has a daughter, born on May 25 in Atlanta, who has been named Margaret Diane.

Lois (Wheeler) Eschen is living in Atlanta where her husband is a student at Georgia Tech. She writes: "I miss Wesleyan and all the girls. I see a few of my friends occasionally—recently Sep Porcher and I chatted about soccer, stunt night and other fun which we had at Wesleyan. I have been working with Gladys Tarpley and Mary (Giglia) Johnson in the Engineering Department of Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company."

Mary Wofford received her diploma in June from the School of Nursing of Vanderbilt University.

Sympathy is extended to Patricia Arnall whose father, Mr. P. E. Arnall, died in an Atlanta hospital in June. Mr. Arnall, an industrialist of Griffin, had the pleasure of seeing Patsy graduate at Wesleyan, but suffered a heart attack the day after commencement, dying 10 days later. The Griffin News said: "There has never been a person in Griffin who was liked or respected more than was Mr. Arnall."
